ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

In an information processing device having a communication function of performing a network connection via a wireless relay apparatus, the information processing device comprises a first unit which finds the wireless relay apparatus, and a second unit which displays information, which is characterized according to identification information of the wireless relay apparatus when the first unit finds the wireless relay apparatus.

5

10